

London's government

London's City Hall plays a vital role in the aspects of the capital's life that affect Londoners every day.

City Hall sits between central government and local councils, working closely with other organisations in the capital including business and community groups, to help provide the services, programmes and investment that keeps the city moving, help the capital grow and support an ongoing commitment to making London a better place now, and for the future.

Find out how you can help make your city even better visit: london.gov.uk/get-involved